He has been on the federal bench since 1892 and has tried many of the biggest corporation cases involving alleged violations of the United States laws. One of these was the famous John C. New bank case, in which Judge Anderson excited public comment by the spirited nature of his attack upon Mr. New.

THREE FATALLY HURT IN CRASH

Train Hits Crowded Street Car—Twenty Badly Injured in Cleveland Ohio.

Cleveland, O., Feb. 25.—Three persons were fatally injured and 20 others hurt in a collision between a Pennsylvania railway train and a streetcar.

The fatally injured are: Henry C. Schwartz, contractor, shoulder fractured and internal injuries; Parker Lowe, contractor, arm dislocated, rib broken and internal injuries; C. H. Ball, Williamsfield, O., compound fracture of the skull.

The streetcar was outbound and heavily loaded with passengers. At the grade crossing steam from an exhaust pipe in a nearby factory obscured a view of the approaching passenger train. For this reason the gates were not lowered and the car proceeded, although the conductor had run ahead and pulled the derailling lever. The locomotive struck the car near the rear end, splitting it in two. Many passengers were hurled several feet. That many were not killed was due to the slow speed of the train.

Miss Allene Borky, a nurse girl, who had 15-months-old Howard Clark in her arms, was thrown through a car window. She clung to the baby and both escaped with only slight bruises.

HOUSE DEFIES SENATE

Rejects Many Amendments to Salary Increase Measure.

Washington, Feb. 25.—With its war paint on, the house of representatives defied the senate by rejecting its amendments to the legislative appropriation bill providing for salary increases for the president, the vice president, the speaker, the judiciary, and for the creation of the offices of undersecretary and fourth assistant secretary of state. Party lines were obliterated completely.

The increase proposed in the president's salary from $50,000 to $100,000 a year was on division rejected, 145 to 164, but on demand of Mr. Watson (Ind.), the yeas and nays were ordered and the roll was called. This vote resulted: yeas 141, nays 168.

DEFENDANT'S MOTHER STRONGLY DENOUNCES ATTORNEY IN COURT

Mrs Amelia Belle Allan Found Guilty Of Murder Of Mrs Tutt By Jury And Given Life Imprisonment.

Redwin, who so strongly assisted in the prosecution and who made such a powerful argument of the case yesterday before it went to the jury. She had to be removed from the court room.

ANOTHER MONUMENT TO PRES. GARFIELD

Citizens of the Big Sandy Are Taking Step to Erect One in That Section.

A letter from Prestonburg, Ky., states that a movement is on foot to erect a monument at that place to the memory of President Garfield.

In 1862, Eastern Kentucky especially along the Big Sandy Valley, was a scene of great military activity, there having occurred a number of engagements in that section of the State. The campaign for 1862 opened with active military operations in that part of the State, during the month of January.

Confederate General, Humphrey Marshall, had early in January entrenched his forces at Paintsville, Johnson county, for the purpose of interrupting the movements of General Don C. Buel, a portion of whose command, under Gen. Thomas was moving toward Cumberland Gap.

Col. James A. Garfield, who had been ordered to dislodge Marshall's forces, had on the 7th of January, broken up his camp on Middle Creek, and with the 14th Kentucky and 42nd Ohio Infantry regiments, with 300 of the 2nd Virginia Cavalry, marched to Paintsville and found Marshall had fled up the river. Pursuing them, an engagement took place on Jennie's Creek, resulting in a small loss on either side.

Garfield was reinforced by the 40th Ohio and detachment of Wolford's cavalry making in all 3,000 men while the Confederate forces consisted of two Virginia regiments, two Kentucky regiments, a detachment of cavalry of four pieces of artillery. Two days later the forces under Garfield encountered the Confederates at Middle Creek, near Prestonburg, and the engagement was one of the fiercest that had been fought up to that time.

For a gallantry on the field Colonel Garfield was promoted to Brigadier General and began that brilliant career as a soldier and statesman, which finally culminated in his election to the presidency in 1880.

The matter will be presented to Congress by Representative Langley, and with the co-operation of the citizens of the Sandy Valley, a monument commensurate with the distinguished subject will be erected.

BLIND TIGER KEEPERS TO PAY $15,000 FINES

Kentucky and Tennessee Are United In Prosecuting Violators of the Law.

DANVILLE, Ky., Feb. 25.—At Williamsburg, county seat of Whitley county, the mills of justice are grinding out the destruction of the scores of alleged blind tigers that have operated for a generation on the Tennessee-Kentucky boundary line. The officers of Tennessee and Kentucky are working in harmony, and the offender who in the past has found ready refuge by stepping over into Tennessee when approached by a Kentucky officer and vice versa, has found himself confronted by the stern hand of the law of the other State. Fines aggregating $15,000 have been imposed this week. Ninety cases have been tried at Williamsburg alone, while the Tennessee courts have been engaged with even a larger volume.

FORAKER MAY HOLD THE KEY

His Vote On Censure Report in Doubt—Clarke, of Arkansas, Also a Factor.

Washington, Feb. 25.—Upon Senators Foraker of Ohio and Clark of Arkansas depends whether the judiciary committee of the senate will declare the absorption of the Tennessee Coal and Iron company by the United States Steel corporation to have been in violation of the Sherman trust law and whether President Roosevelt was authorized by law to sanction the merger.

The committee was in session for more than two hours, having under consideration the report of the majority of the subcommittee which investigated the merger, and by a vote of 3 to 2 condemned the merger and the president's action in permitting it. Finally it was agreed to meet again on Monday next and vote upon the report.

Senators Kittredge, Culberson and Overman, who signed the majority report, claim that the vote of the committee will be at least 7 to 6 and possibly 8 to 5 for its adoption. This claim is opposed by Senators Clark of Wyoming and Dillingham, the minority of the subcommittee, and by Senator Knox, who are working to uphold the president's course. Other members do not profess to know how Senators Clarke of Arkansas and Foraker will vote. Known to be for the report are Messrs. Nelson and Kittredge, Republicans, and Bacon, Culberson, Overman and Paynor, Democrats. Against it are Messrs. Clarke of Wyoming, Depew, Dillingham, Knox and Fulton, all Republicans.

At the suggestion of Mr. Overman the report was modified to the extent that the assertion that the merger was in violation of the Sherman law was changed to a declaration that the deal "appears to the committee" to be a violation of law.

The minority of the subcommittee filed a statement asserting that the committee had exceeded its functions under the resolution of the senate by introducing evidence which had not been before the president when he sanctioned the merger, and that the committee had judged the case upon this new evidence, which the president had not the opportunity to consider.

This report stated that the committee should decide the case only upon evidence which was before the president, and that in doing so it would be necessary to find that the president had not proceeded in violation of law. This report also will be printed and will be before the full committee when it votes on Monday.

IN THE SENATE.

Washington, Feb. 25.—The agricultural appropriation bill was under discussion in the senate during practically the entire session. Senator McCumber of North Dakota discussed at length the rights of congress under the constitution to fix standards for grain, and declared that present practices make impossible the sale of western grain at the prices to which it is really entitled. Senator Heyburn denounced the methods of administering the forest service in a speech which occupied two hours. Consideration of the bill was not concluded.

The older Mr. Day denies the execution of the note. This case is to be tried before special Judge James Morris, who was appointed special judge in the case during the incumbency of the late Judge Robert Riddle and before the election of the present regular Judge.

With Humorous Intent.

The sense of the comic is much blunted by habits of punning and of using humorous phrase; the trick of employing Johnsonian polysyllables to treat of the infinitely little. And it really may be humorous, of a kind, yet it will miss the point by going too much round about it.—George Meredith, in "An Essay on Comedy."

The Woman Who Works.

The woman who works is inevitably a woman who is broad in her views. Her opinions are not riveted to any one spot. Her viewpoint is movable. Her experience in the business mart gives her sympathy for other woman workers. She has learned to accept every friend, new and old, at an honest valuation. She learns to enjoy the society of people who have made something out of life.—Exchange.

Possibilities or a Moment.

We cannot speak a loyal word and be meanly silent; we cannot kill and not kill in the same moment; but a moment is room wide enough for the loyal and mean desire, for the outlash of a murderous thought and the sharp backward stroke of repentance.—George Elliot.

The Good That Never Dies.

Dickens: There is nothing, innocent or good, that dies and is forgotten. Let us hold to that faith or none. An infant, a prattling child, will live again in the better thoughts of those who loved it, and will play its part, through them, in the redeeming actions of the world, though its body be burnt to ashes or drowned in the deepest sea.

Sundown is Sure.

"A man kin allus fix up argument to quiet his conscience," said Uncle Eben, "but 'tain't no use. No matter how much you turns de clock back, sundown gwinter come jes' de same."

DIRECTORY.

Kentucky.

According to the last census Kentucky has a population of 2,147,174.

The area is 40,400 square miles; 400 of which is water. The streams within the State, as a rule head in the Southeast and flow in a Northwesterly direction; this fact retarded the construction of railroads and the development of our resources for many years.

The early railroads were built from the East and went over the more level territories North of the Ohio River and South of the Cumberland Mountains. In those days there was only a limited demand for coal and lumber. Now that the demand has increased. It would seem that a kind providence has held in reserve our almost inexhaustible utilities until a time when they are most needed by the country. Our supply of timber is limited, but there is enough to last for many years to come.

We have a coal area of over fifteen thousand square miles. Other minerals await development.

Natural gas and oil, in paying quantities are being developed in many localities.

There are no more bad people in Kentucky than in other States in proportion to population. Good people regardless of politics or religion, are always welcome.

Clark County.

Land acres, 158,176.

Value of real and personal property including franchises, $12,004,870.

Tax rate for all county purposes, 50 cents, on the hundred dollars.

The foothills of the mountains are on the Eastern border of the county, the Kentucky River on the South, forms the county line for a distance of twenty-five miles. Ford on the river, South of Winchester, has extensive lumber mills.

Three railroads go entirely across the county—Chesapeake & Ohio, Louisville & Nashville and Lexington & Eastern.

Blue Grass is a natural product. Uncultivated land will set itself in blue grass. Crops of timothy and clover can be raised with profit. Corn, wheat, rye and oats are the grain crops. Tobacco is raised in large quantities.

All fruits that are adapted to the climate can be raised with profit. The census of 1900 gave the population at 16,694.

Close Watch Kept on the Man of Many Interests.

HIS EVERY MOVE IS CHRONICLED

Even a Few Hours' Absence from His Usual Haunts Causes Flurry Among Brother Operators—How Business Secrets Are Sometimes Wormed from Shrewd Men of Business.

NEW YORK—"The man of many interests can no more get away from the penetrating rays of publicity than a cat can get away from its tail," said the old-time detective. "In the first place, the nation at large is keeping its eye on him. But that's only one eye. There are a thousand little blaring orbs that follow him wherever he goes during business hours. Let him be absent from his office at a time when the bankers, brokers and traders believe he should be there, and straightway goes a notice over the ticker to every one of them."

"J. P. Morgan is said to be detained at his home by illness," runs the message, if it be about him, or "E. H. Harriman, who is not at his office to-day, is reported to be about to make a trip to the Pacific coast."

Whoever it may be who has temporarily dropped out of sight a rush is at once made for his office.

Perhaps the firm gives out a statement. If this formal communication seems all right, that settles it. If it contains a word or clause that looks suspicious the chase is redoubled. Messages fly fast over the telegraph and the long-distance telephone wires. And if possible, reassuring information be not forthcoming within an hour the wildest rumors begin to appear.

Mr. Harriman a while ago dropped out of sight for four hours, relates Allen L. Benson in the New York Herald. The usual inquiry was begun. In the course of 30 minutes it was definitely determined that Mr. Harriman was not at his home. In the next 15 it was learned he had been in Boston and was not feeling well. A full hour from the start news came that he had left Boston. The facts stopped coming. No one knew where he was going. No one knew what was the matter with him.

Rumors Fly Thickly.

During the next three hours almost every conceivable rumor about Mr. Harriman was started—he was seriously ill; he was about to go to a hospital for an operation; he had been operated on; he was better; he was worse.

And then definite information came that nothing of importance was or had been the matter with him.

During the panic last year Mr. Morgan could not have been watched much more carefully if he had been a special train running a mile a minute under the constant observation of the best dispatcher on the road.

Yet it is not in such daylight operations, lasting only a few hours, that "business" shows its greatest acuteness of vision or its most unflagging persistence. It is when the big financiers want to force somebody's hand or to obtain inside information regarding another's plans that the eye of a hawk becomes, in comparison, like that of a grocery store codfish. In such emergencies beautiful women have sometimes been hired to follow men for months—to Europe and back came she should recognize the moment and play the game.

The time finally came. The partner asked her to go to dinner with him the next evening. She had been to dinner with him before and had gained enough of his confidence to know this dinner was not to be like the others. But she lost no time in accepting the invitation, and still more promptly told her cousin.

An hour later the cousin was in a private detective agency with the chief. Carefully he told the story of how he and his agreeable partner had tried to buy out the disagreeable other fellow and, having failed, had engaged a man to shadow him to Europe. Even more minutely he went over the matter concerning the hiring of the pretty cousin. Then he came to his point.

He wanted two detectives assigned to shadow the couple, first to the theater and then to their ultimate destination. Within a minute after the arrival of the third partner and his companion one of the detectives should knock on the door, which the beautiful cousin would thereupon open. The other partners would at once appear, feign surprise, indignation and anger, and the next morning the third partner would be told he must sell out at their figure or suffer exposure.

Shown Error of Their Ways.

The detective chief listened in silence until the story was told.

"Do you realize," said he, "you have asked me to help you do something for which we would both be sent to state prison?"

The gentleman expressed great amazement.

"You have asked me to aid you in springing a trap by means of which you plan to force your partner to sell at a price fixed by yourself property that he does not want to sell. Now, what would be the result if I were to do it?"

"The partner of whom you are trying to rid yourself would go home and some one had bought all her fashionable gowns and finery, her motor car and paid her hotel bills. She chatted with him for ten minutes and then bade him good evening, just as his interest in her was ascending by leaps and bounds. The next day he asked her to ride with him through the park, and she politely declined.

For three months this handsome young feminine person played with this wise gentleman in much the same manner that a cat would toy with a mouse it intended ultimately to eat. Little by little she let it be known she was a widow. Reared by an indulgent father, all she had known about money was that it was made in the mint and her papa got it. Nor did her husband force upon her more definite knowledge of the manner in which dollar bills are nursed into tens and tens into hundreds.

Then death came upon their happy home, and in a twinkling the responsibilities of a large fortune were thrust upon her. She disliked these burdens so. She was never trained to bear them, she had neither aptitude nor liking for such tasks, and she was in constant fear of tumbling into pitfalls.

The gentleman was duly sympathetic. To the best of his limited ability he would at any time instruct her. Was she at that time contemplating any investment about which he might enlighten her? She was not.

This woman knew what to do—or, rather, she had been told what to do. Her employers wished to know whether spend a sleepless night. About eight o'clock in the morning he would say to himself: "I can stand this no longer. I must go to my attorney and seek his advice."

"He'd go. His attorney would listen to his story, take out his watch, note the time—nine o'clock—and say: 'I want you to go with me at once to the district attorney's office and swear out a warrant for that young woman for conspiring to extort money from you.'"

"The third partner would swear to the warrant and the young woman would be arrested. Within an hour after her arrest the whole story would be wrung from her and warrants would be sworn out for you and your other partner."

"Abandon this scheme. Go to your office to-morrow morning and tell your partner you came within hailing distance of the penitentiary to-night, but luckily escaped it. If ever you have any honest detective work to do I shall be at your service, but this case I would not take for a million dollars."

Again the Feminine Element.

On another occasion a firm of big operators wanted to get inside information concerning a multi-millionaire's ultimate plans for the development of a great property. There was no use of sending men to brush up against him. He never talked to men. But he had evidently promised his aged grandmother he would never be unkind to a woman, so they determined to capitalize this trait of his character. From no one knows where they enlisted the services of as pretty a woman as ever rode down Fifth avenue.

In a few days she appeared at the hotel in which the great capitalist made his home. She was beautiful enough to be conspicuous in any company—different enough to make her attractiveness compelling. She neither sought nor declined introductions to others, passing her time as any well-bred woman in affluent circumstances might wish to do. As good an automobile as is made in France took her from and to the hotel. And the car bore her monogram.

Wise Gentleman Easy Victim.

Her life in this hotel was destined to be marked by two great days, and it was six months before the first one came. On that day she was introduced to the man on account of whom

Closing the Question.

The Sunday school teacher, being aware that the rector intended visiting the church during this Sabbath's school session, drilled her little class on such important questions as "Who made them," etc., until he felt sure that should the clergyman deign to quiz her charges they would do themselves and her credit.

Hardly had she so concluded, when the church door opened and in strode the rector, who passed along the rows of basking pews until he reached this very cluster of pupils, which he at once proceeded to take in hand.

"Now, my boy," asked he, picking out a youngster in the end of the pew, "who made you?"

"God made me," blurted the youth, glancing appealingly at his more familiar teacher. Then suddenly encouraged by her eyes, he boldly faced the minister and added, unexpectedly, "an' he made the whole bunch!"—Circle Magazine.

Too Many for Him.

An American traveling in Germany was much bewildered at the large number of distinct and apparently independent countries through which he went.

Just as he became accustomed to Bavaria, with its blue and white national colors, he would find himself, without warning in Wurtemberg, where they have an entirely different king, and entirely different military uniforms, and a strikingly different dialect. Then a few hours' ride on a train whisked him into Saxony, and then it was Saxe-Coburg-Gotha, and then Saxe-Weimar, and then Baden, and then Hesse Darmstadt. At last he threw up his hands in despair.

"Where are we now?" he inquired. "Frankfurt-on-the-Main."

"Who is the local duke?" he asked, wearily.

World's Coldest City.

Yakutsk, in eastern Siberia, is said to be the coldest city in the world. It is the great commercial emporium of eastern Siberia and the capital of the province of Yakutsky, which in most of its area of 1,517,063 square miles is a bare desert, the soil of which is frozen to a great depth. Yakutsky consists of about four hundred houses of European structure, standing apart. The intervening spaces are occupied by winter yurts, or huts of the northern nomads, with earthen roofs. The doors are covered with hairy hides and the windows are of ice.

Betrayed.

He was very, very young, but extremely desirous of appearing the pink of sophistication. So he strolled into the gay cafe and stood nonchalantly before the bar, like a genuine man of the world.

"Do you—er—keep cocktails?" he inquired, airily.

He did not join in the ensuing laugh.

Violence of Reason.

Reason is always a kind of brute force; those who appeal to the head rather than the heart, however pallid and polite, are necessarily men of violence. We speak of "touching" a man's heart, but we can do nothing to his head but hit it.—Gilbert K. Chesterton.

THE AWAKENING.

It is hard for the average man to realize the wonderful change in public sentiment in the last fifteen or twenty years. A decade or two ago, it was not believed that the great trust magnates or the rich malefactors could be brought to the bar of the law. The public prosecutors in those days never thought even for a moment of attempting either civil or criminal prosecutions. It was believed that these people were outside the law.

Tuesday in the Supreme Court of the United States the verdict of the Circuit Court of the Southern District of New York, imposing a fine of $108,000 upon the New York Central Railroad Company, on the charge of granting rebates to the American Sugar Refining Company was affirmed.

The court also rendered a similar decision upholding the lower court in the case of a shipment to Cleveland, O., in which a fine of $25,000 was imposed. Again, the case of the United States against the New York Central and Hudson Railroad Company, involving the question whether a railroad company which is a party to a rebate transaction, but was not the initiatory road, can be criminally prosecuted for a violation of the Elkin anti-trust law, was decided against the company.

In another decision on the same day, the Supreme Court upheld the validity of the Arkansas anti-trust law of 1905 against the Hammond Packing Company, of Chicago, which, it was charged had combined with other packers to fix the price of meats and upon which a fine of $10,000 was imposed.

These are the judgments of the highest court in the country in a single day. Within six months, last past, Morse, the speculating banker of New York, and Walsh, a king of finance, of Chicago, have been convicted of criminal offenses and sentenced to the penitentiary.

The prosecuting attorneys of San Francisco have brought to law and are attempting to send to the State prison hoodlum public officials and the rich men who made tools of them. In Pittsburgh more than 80 aldermen are under indictments and some of them will shortly grace prison stripes.

These things are due to an awakened public conscience. The courts may be honest; but unless the law has behind it the moral support of the people it amounts to little. Public opinion no longer looks with complacency on crime in high places. The crusade that has been waged by high-class newspapers, magazines and patriotic citizens has borne its fruits and America is now reaping the harvest of a better and higher morality.

The gigantic strides taken by the United States after the Civil War, the stupendous growth in our industrial and commercial life loosened the moral fibres somewhat and we paid the penalty in disregard and defiance of the law by rich and powerful malefactors.

But it is a long lane that has no turning. The American people are sound at bottom. They may be careless, they may be thoughtless; but when they finally realize where they are drifting, the reaction comes, conscience awakens, and the offenders against public law and private standards of morality are brought to task.

PATRIOTISM.

A Lincoln celebration, a Washington's birthday anniversary and the return of a great fleet of American warships from the most notable cruise in naval history have created what has been characterized as the opportunity for a display of the intangible and somewhat indefinite thing called patriotism. It may not be out of place to stop a moment in the midst of the enthusiasm for a little serious reflection as to what patriotism really means.

The dictionaries define it as love of country and loyalty to country. Association develops attachment. All men worthy the name have some sentiment with respect to the land that gives them birth. We readily accept the idea of obligation and loyalty in a general sense but, frequently perhaps, without sufficient regard for the specific significance of the terms.

Perhaps we confuse the sentiment with respect to nativity with the more tangible things that call for devotion and loyalty. The country is not merely the fields and the forests, the mountains and the plains. The word country in the modern sense is a comprehensive term. It includes the institutions and organizations that constitute our civilization.

The patriot may love the land of his birth. He may have a sentimental regard for the material surroundings of his life. A man may actually love the soil and the trees and the streams and everything that makes up his environment and yet not be a patriot in the highest sense. The real patriot sees beyond these things. He has a broader conception of the term patriotism and a deeper devotion to the principles and institutions that really constitute his country.

The people are always the more important element in the nation. Material things are valuable only to the extent that they contribute to the popular progress and welfare. The man who is readiest to display a flag on a national holiday or to shout the loudest upon any occasion that arouses popular enthusiasm, is not necessarily the best patriot. The true patriotism is not in sentimental devotion to some particularly environment or in a demonstration of enthusiasm over some conspicuous phase of national activity, but in a profound consideration for the public welfare. —The Kentucky Evening Gazette.

WAR NOT PROBABLE.

Berlin Takes Optimistic View of Serbian Situation.

Berlin, Feb. 25.—There is no reason to believe that an outbreak of war between Austria and Serbia is imminent, according to the view held in the most authoritative semi-official circles. The alarmist reports are regarded as being much exaggerated. It is admitted, however, that the situation is not clear, and will remain clouded until those powers which, like France, are striving to maintain peace, make their voices heard at St. Petersburg and induce Russia to notify Belgrade that in the event of war Serbia can not rely upon either direct or indirect Russian support.

CABINET IS COMPLETE

Almost Certain MacVeagh Is to Be Secretary of Treasury.

New York, Feb. 25.—President-elect William H. Taft completed his cabinet by the offer of the treasury portfolio and its acceptance. That the offer was made to and accepted by Franklin MacVeagh of Chicago, is as near a positive statement of what is believed to be the fact as may be made in the face of an absolute refusal by Mr. Taft to throw any light on the most interesting situation. It is vaguely hinted that there are things to be accomplished in Washington before announcement may be properly made.

In spite of strong belief that Mr. MacVeagh had been offered the treasury portfolio and had already or would accept, there were reports that the name of A. B. Hepburn, former comptroller of the currency, of New York, had figured largely in the conferences on the subject. It was declared that should anything arise to eliminate Mr. MacVeagh from the list as it is now understood to stand, Mr. Hepburn would be selected to take his place.

SPERRY TO RETAIN COMMAND OF FLEET

Admiral Goes to Washington This Afternoon.

Fort Monroe, Va., Feb. 25.—Rear Admiral Sperry will leave for Washington this afternoon instead of on Friday, as he at first planned. He goes to consult with the navy department authorities as to the further plans for the fleet, and nothing in the way of inspection or detaching any of the ships will be done until he returns. The commanding and other officers were much gratified by the published reports from Washington that Admiral Sperry would continue as commander-in-chief of the battle-ship fleet until the date of his retirement in September.

Some others were inclined to believe the report that has spread throughout the fleet to the effect that President Roosevelt intends himself to name the next commander-in-chief before he retires from office. An official announcement is expected while Admiral Sperry is in Washington.

MYSTERIOUS ASSAULTS

Schmidt drove to Toledo, and when his team arrived home Schmidt was found in the wagon box unconscious and badly hurt. He was removed to a hospital and has been unconscious since. Mrs. Huyar was found in bed by neighbors who heard moans coming from the house. She had been beaten over the head, and a six-months-old child at her side was drenched with blood, but uninjured.

QUEEN LIL IS SUED

Doctor Claims She Broke Contract For Medical Attendance.

Washington, Feb. 25.—Ex-Queen Liliuokalani of Hawaii, otherwise Mrs. Lydia Dominis, was sued in the district supreme court by Dr. Charles H. The plaintiff alleges that he accompanied the ex-queen to the Hawaiian Islands as private physician under a contract to receive $300 a month and expenses and a bonus, and that the defendant broke the contract.

Clock Made of Straw. A shoemaker named Wegner, living in Strasburg, has a clock of the grand father shape, nearly six feet high, made entirely of straw. THE SECRET OF LONG LIFE.

A French scientist has discovered one secret of long life. His method deals with the blood. But long ago millions of Americans had proved Electric Bitters prolongs life and makes it worth living. It purifies, enriches and vitalizes the blood, rebuilds wasted nerve cells, imparts life and tone to the entire system. Its a godsend to weak, sick and debilitated people. "Kidney trouble had blighted my life for months," writes W. M. Sherman, of Cushing, Me., "but Electric Bitters cured me entirely." Only 50c. at Phillips Drug Company.

To Cure Love Madness.

Dr. Berillon of Paris says that love is simply a "fixed affective idea," and the symptoms are an increased sensitiveness of the left side, hand, wrist and left temple. To cure it all one has to do is to set up a counter irritation, give the boy or girl physical exercises that will bring into play the muscles of the right side, and behold, the madness is cured.

The Amateur Gunner.

"Ma," asked the little rabbit, "is it true that pa was shot by an amateur gunner?" "Not at all!" snorted the mother rabbit, scornfully; "the gunner was shooting at something else, while your poor father sat behind him and laughed. Unfortunately he gun kicked, and the man sat down on your father and killed him."

COOPER MAKES ADMISSIONS

Says Shortage in Accounts Was Due to Bad Bookkeeping.

Nashville, Tenn., Feb. 25.—After a day replete with exciting incidents and interesting developments, the session of the Cooper-Sharp trial for the murder of Former Senator Carmack closed with the aged defendant, Colonel D. B. Cooper, still upon the stand.

Almost the first thing the state did on cross-examination was to announce that it would try to prove that Colonel Cooper was a defaulter to the extent of over $100,000 while clerk and master of chancery in Maury county. This precipitated a bitter fight between counsel, during which some harsh words were used and much anger was displayed, despite the efforts of Judge Hart to hold the reins tightly.

The state won a partial victory and straightway sprang another surprise. It resuscitated some old legislative records concerning an investigation into the defalcation of State Treasurer M. T. Polk in the early 80s. It offered to prove that thousands of dollars of the state's money was invested by Polk with Colonel Duncan B. Cooper and others in a Mexican silver mine scheme, a walnut log scheme in North Carolina and a scheme to buy the Nashville American.

Colonel Cooper admitted that there were irregularities in his office of clerk and master in chancery, but said they were due to bad management and poor bookkeeping, and that every dollar was made good.

It is likely from the length to which the state is going on with the colonel's cross-examination that the witness will be on the stand all day today.

LOCK CANAL COMES IN FOR CRITICISM

Engineer Granger Discusses Report of Experts.

New Haven, Conn., Feb. 25.—Earnest advocates of the Gatun dam were found among the members of the American Institute of Mining Engineers during the discussion of the "Panama Canal," upon resuming the sessions of the ninety-sixth meeting. The opposition to the lock type was led by Henry G. Granger of Cartagena, Colombia, who made a sharp attack upon the report made a few days ago by the engineers who went to Panama with Judge Taft to look over the work.

He summed up his attitude in these words: "If the engineers had to go, it is unfortunate that their nominator did not pass through the office of the Chicago drainage canal and go to the camps of contractors who had to use their brains to save money by new methods and devices. It is also to be regretted that engineers were chosen who had been found guilty of seeing a point and generating a germ of an idea which they had fostered into successful development."

JUDGE COMES BACK

Cites Parties Who Seek His Removal For Contempt of Court.

San Juan, P. R., Feb. 25.—A resolution was introduced in the house of delegates urging President Roosevelt to immediately remove Judge B. S. Rodey of the United States district court. The resolution is based on "declarations" made at a legislative hearing on charges brought against Rodey of incapacity and ignorance of the old system of law by American and Porto Rican attorneys.

Judge Rodey has acted in the matter himself and has issued an order against those who have attacked him to show cause why they are not guilty of contempt.

Chicago, Feb. 25.—The grand jury began an inquiry into the affairs of A. Booth & Company, the big fish concern, which is in the hands of a receiver. Sacramento, Cal., Feb. 25.—The senate passed the bill providing for a census of Japanese in the state, to determine whether or not California should ask for a general Asiatic exclusion act. The bill already has passed the assembly and will be signed by the governor at once.

THE STREET

His Process of Reasoning Described by Woman Educator.

Chicago, Feb. 25.—A course of ethics for the streetcar "hog" was recommended at the annual meeting of the department of superintendence of the National Educational association by Miss Ella Lyman Cabot of the Massachusetts board of education.

"When the selfish man who has fixed himself comfortably in a car, with his barricade of bundles around him, sees other persons get on and look around for seats, he undergoes a peculiar mental process," said Miss Cabot. "He begins to figure out how he can pretend he is doing the right thing. He thinks to himself: 'There are other seats farther down the aisle. I can't help it if there are not seats enough for all of us. It is just as easy for them to stand up as it is for me to hold my bundles on my lap. I got here first, anyway. If they had got here first I wouldn't have complained at having to stand up. I guess if they want seats they know enough to ask for them.'"

"These answers all illustrate the tendency of the selfish person to try to deceive himself. He should take up the study of ethics."

SENATORS STAND PAT ON TAXATION

Refuse to Reconsider Clevenger Resolution.

Columbus, O., Feb. 25.—Efforts of Senator Rathbun of Meigs county in the senate to secure a reconsideration of the Clevenger resolution were unsuccessful. The result was that the senate again went on record in opposition to taking up tax reform questions at this session of the assembly. The Clevenger resolution provides for the appointment of a commission to study the question and report at the next session. The Democrats and two Republicans, Rathbun and Tuttle, the latter of Franklin county, voted for a reconsideration, but the Republicans had 18 votes against the proposal. Senator Rathbun made a plea for reconsideration, saying the matter had not been carefully considered before the resolution was adopted and that it was clearly a movement for delay. Senator Mather, the Republican leader, declared the resolution would not necessarily mean the prevention of legislation on taxation matters if the need were really pressing.

In the house, Representative Gilligan's bill providing for municipal lodging houses was passed, with an amendment offered by the author stipulating that no one shall use a municipal lodging house as a legal residence.

Kills Tidrick Bill.

Columbus, O., Feb. 25.—The house taxation committee killed the Tidrick bill, intended to force the payment of personal taxes by providing that suit can not be brought to collect on notes, stocks, bonds and other securities which have not been recorded. The house elections committee decided to report favorably the Schreiber bill, providing for the election of all judges by separate ballot.

New York, Feb. 25.—The trial of Carl Fischer-Hansen, the lawyer and society man, under indictment charging him with the bribery of a witness, was brought to a sudden close by the entering of a plea of guilty by the defendant to an amended complaint charging attempted bribery. A sentence of 12 months' imprisonment in the penitentiary was imposed on Fischer-Hansen by Justice Dowling.

LEAD TRUST IN LINE

Follows Steel Corporation's Example In Slashing Prices.

Pittsburg, Pa., Feb. 25.—Following the lead of the United States Steel corporation, the National Lead company has declared an open market for lead and its products. This move is openly admitted to be due to the discovery that the independent lead companies were cutting rates on every hand to secure contracts.

OPERA HOUSE

Vogel's Minstrels.

On Thursday, March 4 at the opera house an unexcelled minstrel performance can be looked for, for on that date John W. Vogel's Big City Minstrels with upward of fifty people will be here.

Vogel is known as the greatest manager, while Chas. Gano is conceded to be one of the most popular comedians in the minstrel world, and there is little doubt but what the organization is as claimed, the richest and costliest in existence.

The first part will be set in a new creation, entitled The Electric Velour Palace, a magnificent affair; beautifully staged and appropriately costumed. The overture is teeming with charming up-to-date music, excellent vocalisms and graceful action.

The vocalists include the famous alt., Mr. Harry Leighton, the most wonderful Aeolian voiced child soprano, Master A. Newton, the Louisiana Glee Club and a host of others. Sam Harrison, droll humorist, "Bill" Carney, coon shouter, The Great Rolan, novelty entertainer, John Goss, bone soloist, The Lane Trio, and others will appear in the all-feature olio. "The Lion and the Mouse."

There is nothing in the local booking for the current season that will attract the interest of playgoers to a greater extent than "The Lion and the Mouse," which Henry B. Harris will present here again, and which comes with an endorsement that has not hitherto been vouchsafed by any production of recent years. Charles Klein wrote the play and when Henry B. Harris gave New Yorkers the opportunity of viewing it they liked it so well that it ran for three years at the Lyceum Theatre in that city. The Boston judgment was expressed in crowded houses for six months, and for the eight months it ran in Chicago and the attendance exceeded anything in the history of Chicago theatricals.

"The Lion and the Mouse" is booked here for Wednesday, March 3.

HOME CURE FOR ECZEMA

Oil of Wintergreen, Thymol, Glycerine, Etc., Used as a Simple Wash.

It really seems strange that so many people suffer year in and year out with eczema, when it is now no longer a secret that oil of wintergreen mixed with thymol, glycerine, etc., makes a wash that is bound to cure.

Old, obstinate cases, it is true, cannot be cured in a few days, but there is absolutely no sufferer from eczema who ever used this simple wash and did not find immediately that wonderfully soothing, calm, cool sensation that comes when the itch is taken away. Instantly upon applying a few drops of the wash the remedy takes effect, the itch is allayed. There is no need of experiment—the patient knows at once.

Instead of trying to compound the oil of wintergreen, thymol, glycerine, etc., in the right proportions ourselves, we are using a prescription which is universally found the most effective. It is known as the D. D. D. Prescription, or Oil of Wintergreen Compound. It is made by the D. D. D. Co. of Chicago, and our long experience with this remedy has given us great confidence in its merits.

It seemed to J. A. Stone, a civil war veteran, of Kemp, Texas, that a plot existed between a desperate lung trouble and the grave to cause his death. In Greek mythology, Narcissus is a beautiful youth, a son of Cepheus, and the nymph Liriope metamorphosed into a flower. GETS AFTER CREEK.

Clark county is another one of the so-called wealthy Blue Grass counties of the State, but she only has $220,475 cash in her banks. At least that is what her Assessor's report shows, though the bank reports show over $2,000,000 in the Winchester banks alone. Fleming county gives in over $400,000, and is ranked a much poorer county than Clark. These facts should be borne in mind when the State Board of Supervisors gets to work.—Flemingsburg Gazette.

The Round-Up

A Romance of Arizona

Novellized From Edmund Day's Melodrama

By JOHN MURRAY and MILLS MILLER

Copyright, 1908, by G. W. Dillingham Co.

Slim smoothed down his tangled hair and brushed off some of the dust which whitened his shoulders. "Look here, Miss Polly—"

Then his courage failed him, and he stopped. Polly glanced at him to help him over the hard places. Slim was greatly embarrassed. "My heart is right up in my throat. Well, I might as well spit it out," he thought aloud.

Again Slim started toward the girl to tell her of his love, and again his courage failed him, although Polly was doing her best to help him.

"Look here, Miss Polly, I've been after somebody for a long time now."

"Horse thief?" asked Polly coquettishly.

"No, heart thief," blurted Slim.

"Stealin' hearts ain't no harm."

"Well, just the same, I'm goin' to issue a writ of replevin an' try fer to git mine back," laughed Slim. He was about to slip his arm about her waist when she turned and faced him. The action so disconcerted him that he jumped backward as if the girl was about to attack him.

"Where is it?" asked Polly.

Slim, deeply in earnest, replied:

"You know where it's hid. You know just as well as I kin tell you."

Polly became remorseful. She realized how much Slim was suffering, and she was sorry that her answer to him would be a disappointment.

"Please don't say any more, Slim," she said as she stepped away. Slim followed her up, and speaking over her shoulder, said: "I can't help it. You've got my feelin's stampeded now, an' they sure has to run. I've had an itchin' in my heart fer you ever since I first knowed you. You come from Kentucky. Well, I was kinder borned up that way myself, in Boone county, an' that sorter makes—well, if it did, what I want to know is—"

Slim hesitated and nervously hauled at his chaps.

"Will you be my—"

Frightened at his boldness, he clapped his hand over his mouth.

"Can I be your—" he began again.

Angry at himself, he said under his breath, "I'll never get this thing out of my system." In his earnestness he doubled up his fist and shook it behind the girl's back. Suddenly she turned and found his clenched hand directly under her nose. She started back in dismay.

"Excuse me," humbly apologized Slim. "I didn't mean fer to do that, ma'am—deed, I didn't. I was only—that's well, I reckon I'm a little bit—"

Slim looked directly at the girl for the first time. She was trying to restrain her hearty laughter. Slim's face broadened in a grin. "You're a mighty fine piece of work, you are, an' I've got an awful yearnin' to butt into your family."

Polly was greatly moved by Slim's sincerity. "Don't, please don't!" she pleaded. "Why, I've known all along that you love me, but—"

"But what?" he asked when she hesitated.

"I've always liked you real well, an' I've been glad that you liked me. I don't want to lose your friendship, though—an', oh, please forgive me, please do!" Polly was very repentant, showing it by the tones of her voice and in her eyes.

Slim was puzzled at first. Then it came to him that the girl had refused to marry him. "Oh, I low you ain't a-goin' to say you love me, then?"

"I don't believe I am," Polly smiled through her tears.

Slim paused, as if steadying himself to meet the full force of the blow.

"Mebbe it's along of my red hair?"

"It is red, isn't it?" Polly smiled kindly.

Slim ran his fingers through his locks and then looked at his fingers, as if expecting the color would come off on his hands. "Tain't blue," he said.

Another thought came to him. "Freckles?" he asked laconically.

Polly only shook her head.

"There's only one cure for freckles—sandpaper," grinned Slim.

"But it isn't freckles," replied the girl.

Slim looked at his hands and feet. "Maybe it's fat?" he hazarded. "Oh, I know I'm too fat! It beats all how I do keep fat."

Slim looked into his hat and sighed.

"Well, I suppose we don't get married this year, do we?"

"No, Slim," said Polly gently.

"Nor any other year to come?" Slim was still hopeful.

"That's the way it looks now."

Slim put on his hat and tried to walk jauntily to the fire, whistling a bit of a tune. The effort was a sad failure.

"Here's where I get off. I'm in sure bad luck. Somebody must have put a copper on me when I was born. I low I gotter be movin'."

"You won't hate me, will you, Slim?"

The sheriff took the girl's hands in his and kissed them. "Hate you?" he almost shouted. "Why, I couldn't learn to do that—no, since—not in a thousand years."

Polly slapped Slim on the back. "I'm glad of that," she cried. "Brace up. You'll get a good wife some day. There's lot of good fish in the sea."

Slim glanced at her ruefully. "I don't feel much like goin' fishin' jest now. Would you mind tellin' me if I get at 'em annyhow."

The court officer restored her to her place in line, dragging her violently back just as she had half way mounted the rail separating her from the sus-siey judges. The sociologists flushed crimson. She still watched them angrily. The crowded courtroom, with never a smile in its hundreds, stared at the college boys dully. Now and then one spectator would point out something unique about the sociologists to his neighbor, and the pair would mutter together. Finn and his victims were forgotten in the interest aroused by the sociologists. The soused person was pushed along in front of the magistrate. She turned her back on the court to watch the sociologists. Failing to gain her attention, Magistrate Finn said: "Ten days."

"Sure, Dan, dear," she half whispered to Mr. Finn, "turn me loose wid them Nancies for jush a minnut and make it twinty days."

At the opposite poles of our inner being are two imperative needs. One is for solitude, the other for society. Women never reach their best development if they live in loneliness or if they spend their whole lives in the social whirl, writes Margaret E. Sangster in Woman's Home Companion.

For our soul's growth in goodness we require time in which to be alone. To the busy mother with her little ones around her, to the woman who prepares three meals a day, to a third who is driven by social engagements, it seems idle to insist that she shall have an hour or two by herself between sunrise and sunset. Without this little space of quiet, let it be ever so hard to attain, let me tell my sister that she will cease to thrive mentally and spiritually. She must think enough about herself to claim this privilege and hold it fast; but no one should shut herself up and live apart from her neighbors unless neighbors are so remote that to reach them she must drive miles across country. In this case the best plan is to find society in books and to cultivate in the family a habit of playing games and unting in evening amusements.

Religion in Business.

The difficulty of living as a Christian should was expressed last week by a young stenographer employed in a large Cleveland business house.

"You can't live as Christ did and be an employe of a large firm," the young woman said.

Sunday she attended the mass-meeting of young Christians at Epworth Memorial church. She was one of the 1,500 who stood up, promising to live for the next two weeks as Christ would. Two days of the experiment convinced her of its impossibility in Cleveland business life.

"It can't be done by an employe," she said. "The employer himself might carry the morality of Christ into his business if he chose. But the employe—at least, in my case—does not, and it is suicidal for the employe to attempt it. Christ's morality and business tact clash. An employe insisting upon rigid honesty would be discharged instantly."

"I don't mean to say my firm is dishonest. Along broad lines it isn't. But the managers resort to many evasions of the truth in order to escape unpleasant consequences."

Too Good a Story to Keep.

This woman was ill, or thought she was, which came to the same thing. Accustomed to the ministrations of the family physician, she sent out a hurry call, but the medico could not be located for the moment. She grew sick and sicker with every minute, and as a last resort, another medical man was sent for, a stranger, but of high repute.

Before he could respond, the family physician turned up and cared for his patient. He was not told that another had been called in, and when the second man arrived, the lady was so flustered and nonplused by the false position in which she found herself that she sent down word she was too ill to see the physician—would he excuse her?

He happened to mention the strange incident to the family physician, with whom he maintains close relations, and that is how the story leaked out.

JOLT FOR COLLEGE STUDENTS

Sociology Students Aroused the Ire of a Bowery "Boozine."

The class in sociology at Williams college, which occasionally makes a visit to New York's slums, is at least gaining material upon which each of them should make a reputation as a raconteur, if they don't learn how the other half lives. The other day they visited Magistrate Finn's court and were seated in a long row behind the bench. A pickled lady from the Bowery gazed at them with outspoken abhorrence. "Dirty little susiey judges," said she. "Oughter be 'shamed of 'emselves—comin' down here embarras hard-workin' lady. If I could get at 'em, I'd learn 'em. I'll get at 'em annyhow."

The court officer restored her to her place in line, dragging her violently back just as she had half way mounted the rail separating her from the susiey judges. The sociologists flushed crimson. She still watched them angrily. The crowded courtroom, with never a smile in its hundreds, stared at the college boys dully. Now and then one spectator would point out something unique about the sociologists to his neighbor, and the pair would mutter together. Finn and his victims were forgotten in the interest aroused by the sociologists. The soused person was pushed along in front of the magistrate. She turned her back on the court to watch the sociologists. Failing to gain her attention, Magistrate Finn said: "Ten days."

LESSON BROUGHT HOME TO HIM.

A Wonderful Child Explains Other People's Viewpoint to Father.

He was a doctor, and not such a young doctor either. That is to say, he had been practicing for nearly ten years. An interesting event happened in his family and he found himself the father of a very fine girl, his first born. A patient who happened in about three days after the event didn't have a great deal of chance to talk about his particular ailments because the father was very eager to tell all about the child.

"I've helped to bring a lot of children into the world," said the doctor, "and I know a lot about them. But I want to tell you that this is about the finest I've ever seen. Now that may seem to you merely to be the enthusiasm of a father, but really I know it's so." And he went on for some time telling about the merits of his offspring, how she was a finely formed child and embraced all the perfections.

He had turned over the duties of attending to his wife and child to another doctor, as the custom is more or less among physicians. This was the reason for one thing the doctor said.

"One afternoon when the baby was only three days old she sneezed. Some way or another that made me nervous and so I decided to call up the doctor."

"It happened he wasn't at home and nothing would do but I must tell his wife all about it over the telephone. She just laughed at me and that sobered my excitement."

"Afterward I thought how angry I might have been had some one of my patients called me up on a foolish matter like that. It just goes to show that this sort of thing is done right along by folks who ought to know better."

Pranks of Politicians.

Albany is infested with practical jokers who make the telephone the chief instrument of torture. At four o'clock one morning Assemblyman Colne, chairman of the assembly committee on canals, was called out of bed. The conversation was in this order:

"This you, Colne? Were you asleep?"

"No, no; I was playing bridge whist out on the lawn tennis court."

"Well, we dislike to disturb you, but we have an argument down town. One man says you are the best authority in these parts on canals. Is that right?"

"Well, I consider myself pretty good in the daytime, but I don't care to be pulled out of bed and asked to discuss canals at four o'clock in the morning."

"You're a little sensitive, is that it?"

"Sensitive nothing; don't you think a man has a right to be a little sensitive over such a trick as this?"

"But you're not angry?"

"No, I'm delighted."

"Well, what we wanted to know is this: Is there any statute prohibiting a member of the legislature from taking a bath in any portion of the Erie canal which is not used for drinking purposes?"

What Mr. Colne said then will never be printed.—New York Herald.

The Spirit Moved Him.

An old negro preacher approached a southern physician and offered a scrap of paper.

"Please, sah, read dat," he said.

The physician found it to be an advertisement in which it was asserted that whisky was the only genuine and reliable specific for malaria.

"But you haven't any malaria, uncle," he assured the old man; "none of it around here at all."

"Whar do dey hab it de wust, Mars' Jeems?" the old man asked, curiously.

"It's pretty bad down on the Cypress river," the physician told him, naming a locality some 20 miles away.

A few days later the physician was passing the old fellow's cabin and observed him climbing upon a rickety old wagon piled high with household goods.

"Moving, Uncle Ned?" he said.

"Where are you going?"

"Mars' Jeems," the old man said, solemnly. "Ah done had a call; de sperit done move me to go wuck in de Lord's vineyard on de banks ob Cypress ribber!"—Harper's Weekly.

Tribute to French Wives.

French girls make good wives. The French bride is comparatively less extravagant than her British or American sister. Where the British wife requires $4 a week, the American wife $18 or $20 a week for the housekeeping, the French wife will manage admirably on $1.90. The Frenchwoman does not regard her husband as a mere money making machine and her house simply as a place to sleep in. As soon as she is married she is her husband's partner in business as well as in private life. She considers it her duty to make herself acquainted with every detail of her husband's business. No French husband will think of taking any important step without first consulting his wife, and her advice is often amazingly shrewd.

CALLS FOR LARGE SACRIFICES.

Ministerial Work Means Giving Up Idea of Worldly Advancement.

Had we ministers trained and worked for a business life as we train and work for the ministry, and lived as economically as we have in the ministry, many of us could have accumulated fortunes ere this. I should like to know if there is any class of men on earth who get more out of the use of their money than the ministers. Show me any other class of men on earth with an average salary of $12 a week who dress so well, live so well, educate their families so well, give so much and save so much for a rainy day, and I will yield my point. Business men rarely realize the sacrifice ministers make. I once tried to persuade a man of large possessions, who is making $25,000 a year, to give up his business and accept a position in our denominational work, which would bring him in $2,500. He almost had a fit at the very suggestion. We do not envy our business classmates who have won fame or accumulated wealth, for in so doing they have had to forego the heavenly privileges which we have enjoyed. We do not want to be pitied, we are not objects of charity, and we are contented with our lot.—Rev. Dr. Curtis Lee Laws, in Leslie's Weekly.

REAL LIVELY SPORTING EVENT.

All Sorts of Things Happened at Tobacco-Chewing Marathon.

"No sport around here?" drawled the old storekeeper at Bacon Ridge, reflectively. "Why, young man, you are away off. You just should have been around here last Saturday night and seen our tobacco-chewing Marathon."

"Tobacco-chewing Marathon?" gasped the corn-starch drummer in surprise.

"Yes, sirree! It was the liveliest sporting event in the state. You see, old Squire Weatherly claimed that he could chew more tobacco in an hour than any man in the village. So Wheatley took him up. Wall, as the crowd was standing around and betting on their favorites and Seth had chawed up six plugs, a little piece slipped down his throat and made him sneeze. Wall, sir, there was a case of fine pepper at that end of the counter and as Seth sneezed the pepper went up in a cloud, and then everybody sneezed. Some of it got in old man Hardapple's eyes and he pulled off his coat and wanted to fight. Then somebody upset the stove and scared the cat. When it was all over Josh Weatherly found his watch had been stolen by a horse trader who had crept in to get warm. Sport? Wall, give me a tobacco-chewing Marathon every time."

DROP ALL THOUGHT

BRAIN MUST BE INACTIVE TO SECURE SLEEP.

Habit of Allowing the Mind to Dwell on Daily Tasks While Seeking Slumber is Direct Bid for Insomnia.

When we seek our couch it is for the purpose of sleep, the great restorer. Therefore if we get into the bad habit of making bed the place to plan the next day's tasks, sleep will revenge itself by remaining away.

Who are the workers who stand the most with least effect on the health? Those who never permit their day duties and their night duties to conflict.

Night, or part of it, is given to us for rebuilding our exhausted systems. Why then should we exhaust them the more by trying to work the clock around.

It is not as if our strength would stand more than a certain amount of pressure. If there were no cases of nervous prostration and brain fog, heart failure and insanity from trying to burn the candle at both ends there might be more sense in defying nature's rules. The slightest knowledge of people shows us those who have gone to the wall from lack of a proper division of labor.

There is not much danger for the man or woman who can work within well-defined limits; there is danger, and near at hand, for those who make their sleeping time a planning time, who take the burdens of life as bed-fellows.

Insomnia is not a pleasant companion, but it is a companion who will soon cling to you as a limpet if once you give it a chance on sleeping hours. Each time you wonder: "What shall I tell Mr. Jones to-morrow?" Instead of wooing sleep you make a bid for insomnia.

You cannot control your thoughts? That is a foolish notion. Thoughts can be controlled as well as actions if the desire and will power be present. Every time the thought of business pops into your brain, push it out again. Do not think at all, if possible; think of anything else save the next day's duties.

Making the mind a blank is a great help in the fight against planning work instead of sleeping. Try all the insomnia cures, count sheep, hold the eyes open wide until they fall of their own weight, pedal the foot, lie with the eyes staring ceilingward, sip a glass of milk slowly—do everything you know to force sleep and drive out thought.

If possible, do not work before bedtime. Take relaxation before retiring; read a novel if only for 15 minutes; take a brisk walk; chat with your family or play a game of solitaire. Thus your last conscious thought will not be of to-morrow's tasks, and your sleep will give new strength for the time ahead.

Ways of Raising Money for Charity.

The method of raising money for charities by such means as the conferring of decorative coat labels on "tag day," is not altogether original. From times immemorial in China a donation of 20,000 taels to charity has secured for the donor the much-prized peacock's feather, while for half that sum a title of nobility is conferred on one's ancestors to the third generation. The late emperor of Brazil followed the same method when erecting a hospital in Rio de Janeiro. Having found a difficulty in obtaining the necessary funds, he announced that the title of "baron" was to be conferred on every subscriber of 10,000 milreis, and that of "count" on subscribers of 250,000 milreis. This announcement produced the desired effect, and the hospital was soon completed. The opening ceremony was performed by the emperor, and attended by a large number of the newly ennobled, who did not altogether relish the words inscribed in letters of gold on the gable of the new building, "Human Vanity to Human Misery."

Her Fatal Error.

He was supposed to be a poor, but otherwise honest young man, while she was admittedly a thing of beauty.

"Will you marry me?" he asked. "No," she answered.

"You are very short," he muttered. "Ditto," she replied. "That's why there is nothing doing in the matrimonial line."

"Oh, I don't know," he sneered, as he extracted an obese billbook from an inside pocket and displayed a number of $1,000 bills. "I'm not so short."

Whereupon the unwary maid tried to fall upon his neck, but he gracefully sidestepped and she fell to the floor in a faint.

Nothing Lacking.

A Highland minister, who was rather a pompous gentleman, came to a shepherd's house to baptize a child. "Are you prepared?" he asked the fond parent.

"O'ay, munnister; I have got a grand ham for tea."

"I mean spiritually prepared," thundered the cleric.

"Af coorse I am; oh, yes. I got two bottles o' first-class whisky from the inn," replied the imperturbable Celt. Tit-Bits.

Standing.

"Lots of fun is poked at the crowded condition of the street cars."

"Yes, it's a standing joke."—Kansas City Times.

SETTING OTHER PEOPLE RIGHT.

Pitfall into Which the Well-Meaning Sometimes Fall.

Occasionally you may set a person right, but be sure you know the person, and don't get a reputation for that sort of thing. People like to be right, and get right, but not set right, at least in a too direct way. Of course we are concerned here with polite society. You are expected to set people right in politics, business and other impolite circles, and set hard. The way some contractors talk to their employees who dig sewers for them is, to say the least, impolite, and the compliments passed and repassed between irate rulers and the houses of representatives are far from pretty, but in these spheres it is considered not bad form to set folks right. Not so in the charmed circle of polite society. Here a correction must be so inferential that it will not hit for several days, and then feel like a cotton bat. Never by any means correct a pronunciation, for you will likely never make peace with the outraged party. Nothing less intricate than a Chinese character may be disputed. Nobody is annoyed at that. We once knew a truly good minister, who had a country charge, where the people were fairly well educated, though they did not always express themselves in sentences strictly grammatical and literary. The rector was a stickler for good language, and had a way of setting everybody right while in conversation. As his people thought he ought to set them right in other lines exclusively, his stay among them was brief. —Newark News.

LITTLE CHANCE FOR BUSINESS.

Man With Golden Opportunity Had Called at Unfortunate Time.

"Now, my dear sir," earnestly began the suave stranger, with the up-turned cigar and unauthenticated diamond, "these handsomely engraved bonds of the Consolidated Mexican Milkweed Rubber Company, which are positively guaranteed to return a 69 per cent. semi-annual dividend, and—"

"I don't really s'pose you can do much dealing in 'em around here, Mr. Slicksmith," frankly interrupted the landlord of the tavern at Skedee Corners. "You see, the only man in the community who might otherwise take an interest in your glittering proposition has been for some time engaged in the payment of an election bet wherein he was solemnly sworn to roll a peanut eight miles by means of a toothpick, which, speaking in round numbers, will be likely to keep him so busy till along about the latter part of next May that he won't have time to make a fool of himself in any other way. Looks considerable like rain, off to the south'rd, don't it?"—Puck.

Getting Along All Right.

A young Japanese in one of our institutions of learning, having acquired a very good knowledge of English, went out to deliver a lecture in that language. On his return, says the Hartford Courant, one of the instructors asked if he had a pleasant time. He replied: "Yes, very." "How did you get on with the lecture?" "Oh, quite well, but the audience smiled at some things when I could see no jokes." "Could you give me an instance?" "Well, I opened my lecture by saying that although I was new in English language I thought I could deliver the goods; and they all smiled." Now, doubtless the audience smiled at what they thought was the ready way in which a foreigner had adapted a bit of American slang; but he did not understand the smile because he thought he was speaking good English.

Costume of German Jurists.

"The black robe and the cap belong to the outfit of a lawyer in the German metropolis," writes an American tourist from that place, "and when the lawyer attains the dignity of judge the collar on his robe is changed from silk to velvet. When this law providing for the 'guard of dignity' was passed the prescribed dress for practicing attorneys included a white necktie. Years ago this custom ceased to be observed, because, as lawyers tell me, it was expensive and troublesome. There is one judge in Berlin, however, who insists on the proper dress, and lawyers who appear before him must expect, if necktie be black, to be turned away with the remark: 'Your cravat is not white.'"

The Surprised Highwayman.

A highwayman stepped out behind a fashionable young woman and hit her a tremendous blow across the side of the head with a piece of gas pipe, expecting to send her to the ground unconscious and rob her of her valuables. Imagine his surprise when, instead of a dull thud, a muffled scream and a fall to the pavement, the weapon bounded back as though it had struck a large piece of rubber and the victim of the attack turned about angrily with: "Beast! What do you mean by trying to disarrange my hair!"—Lamar (Ga.) Democrat.

Fortunate Indeed.

"When I am inspired," exclaimed the youthful poet, "I get fearfully agitated. My breath comes in quick, convulsive gasps. My hair stands on end. I pace up and down restlessly. A fever seizes me. My hands tremble, my eyes goggle. Throughout my frame runs a violent electrical quiver. I gesticulate madly, I—"

"They listened, tense, rapt. 'How lucky,' remarked a true friend, 'that you are inspired so seldom!'"

Wheat Rust Everywhere.
Wheat rust is limited to no section or grade of grain, but is encountered all the world over.

Outgrowing Things.
Yes, we outgrow everything—toys, little pink or blue dresses, friendships, loves, and ideals, and it is well that we do, says a writer in Home Notes. We may occasionally regret some one of them; but if they were always ours how monotonous life would be—it hardly would be worth the living, you know.

The Kind of Bird She Was.
The young lady of the family had just returned from Paris, where she had studied under Marchesi, and Uncle Walsh, who had served her folks "sence befoh de wah," was invited into the parlor to hear her sing. When she concluded her first aria he remarked: "Miss Lucy, yo' sho equalizes a martingale."

Climatic Peculiarity.
Montreal, with its winters of great severity, is 350 miles nearer the equator than is London. Montreal, indeed, is on the same degree of latitude as Venice.

A Family Failing.
The star pupil arose at the school entertainment to declaim his piece. "Lead me your ears!" he bawled. "Ha," sneered the mother of the opposition, but defeated, pupil, "that's Sarah Jane Doran's boy. He wouldn't be his mother's son if he didn't want to borrow something."—Tit-Bits.

The Will and Its Application.
An individual's will is like a big piece of strong machinery; the intellect must direct its workings. The biggest muttonhead on earth can have a strong will; the real strength is in knowing how to use it. All of life's experience goes to teach us that very few arguments, quarrels or distressing situations are worth a fight. Instead of following an impulse to gain revenge, it is always more satisfactory and decent to back up and forget.

Somewhat Rough on Society.
At dinner one evening a well-known actress was most amiable to a very young lieutenant who sat next to her. He was mightily pleased at being on such good terms with a live actress. Suddenly she said in her artless, pretty manner: "I am taking a boy's part in a new play, and I have been watching you ever since we were introduced. You don't mind, do you?"

A Death Each Second.
The number of deaths in the world annually is 33,333,333, or 91,954 per day, 3,730 per hour, 60 per minute, or one per second. It is estimated that the population of the earth at the present time is being increased at the rate of about 16,500,000 annually.

Advice for the Lovelorn.
When a girl begins to talk a great deal about some other man it is an excellent time to propose to her.

Beauty at the Breakfast Table.
To look her best a woman should rise slowly, dress by degrees, make her toilet as if time were at a standstill, and stroll down to the first meal of the day without the slightest trace of having hurried or of being in a hurry, either for refreshment or news. Women who follow this plan are always those who are most admired, but from the hostess' point of view it is not to be recommended.—Ladies' Pictorial.

Conscientious, Indeed!
"I notice that a leading actress telephoned that her automobile was broken down and she couldn't attend a meeting of her creditors." "Wasn't that sweet of her! Going to all that trouble for a lot of fussy old creditors."

Polliteness Pays.
Nothing pays so well as polliteness, except industry and honesty. And an industrious, honest man is handicapped if he is not polite. Don't leave a trail of grumbling and ill nature wherever you go.—Atchison Globe.

Uncle Eben's Wisdom.
"Dar's lots o' ways o' benefitin' society," said Uncle Eben. "Sometimes you kin do mo' good to be public by workin' ten minutes wit a snow shove, dan by lecturin' two hours an' a half."

COAL FLEET IN GREAT DANGER

Flood Stage Expected at Cincinnati Today.

RIVERMEN WERE NAPPING

Waters of Ohio Rise So Rapidly That Occupants of River Front Had Little Time to Prepare for Migration to Higher Ground—All Tributaries Are on Rampage and Flatboats, Barges and Other Craft Are Set Adrift.

Cincinnati, O., Feb. 25.—Following rains that for intensity in many places were like cloudbursts, the Ohio river at this point passed the flood stage of 50 feet, while nearly all points up and down the river and on the larger tributaries also reported flood conditions, either present or threatened. So rapidly did the river come up that many of the less experienced rivermen were almost caught napping, the 2-hour jump in stage having been at the rate of half a foot an hour and continuing at the rate of over an inch an hour.

Coal men frantically worked to protect barges containing 10,000,000 bushels of coal now in harbor here, the high wind and the rough weather making their labors particularly difficult. Other interests along the river front were equally active. The railroads are still in normal condition in this city, but the official prediction of at least 55 feet by tonight forecasts the abandonment of the Grand Central station, which is threatened by a 53-foot stage and made inaccessible for traffic at 55 feet. In the lowlands second stories were sought by many, while others abandoned their homes entirely for greater safety elsewhere.

Reports from the up-river cities were much to the same effect. At Parkersburg the official prediction is for at least two feet above flood stage, and already the flats have been abandoned. Similar reports come from Portsmouth, Ironton, Gallipolis and other places. The Muskingum, Scioto, Kanawha, Big Sandy, Big and Little Miami and Licking rivers are away above flood stage, and have been pouring their floods into the already swollen Ohio, carrying away logs, flatboats and whatever else happened to be loose along the river banks. Wrecked coal barges passed here, having been carried down from some point above. Thousands of logs, torn from their mooring on the Licking river, almost created a panic when they swept into the Ohio at this point, coal and other barges narrowly escaping serious damage as the swift current battered them with the heavy logs.

The storm was particularly severe all over eastern Kentucky, and a number of smaller settlements are partly under water, while much loose farm property was carried away. Cooler weather with a cessation of the heavy rains would limit the extent of the flood, and to such a change the river and transportation interests look for protection from greater loss.

Big Miami Overflows.
Piqua, O., Feb. 25.—The Big Miami river is overflowing its banks as a result of the heavy rains. The stove works and the rolling mills and several other plants have been forced to close and are suffering considerable damage. The northern section of the town is inundated and the water is backing up into Piqua. People are preparing to move.

Flood Warnings Issued.
Frankfort, Ky., Feb. 25.—Flood and danger warnings have been flashed up and down the Kentucky river, which continues to rise at the rate of a foot an hour and already has caused much damage. The water is pushing up fast in the lower part of this city. Haystacks and shocks of corn floating down show that low farmlands above have been completely inundated.

STATE RESTS ITS CASE

Doctor Says Marks on Rascal's Overcoat Are Blood Stains.

Medina, O., Feb. 25.—Declaring that the mysterious spots found upon the overcoat of Guy Rascal, on trial accused of the murder of his sweetheart, Orie Lee, were human blood spots, Dr. John Spenser, a Cleveland expert in blood analysis, closed the state's case against Rascal in common pleas court. The overcoat was found in the buggy used by Rascal Oct. 8, the night of the murder.

Iowa Starts Prohibition Fight.
Des Moines, Ia., Feb. 25.—What is regarded as the beginning of a fight for the adoption of a prohibitory amendment in Iowa was formally launched in the lower house. The prohibitory campaign is being favored by the Anti-Saloon league and a committee from the Ministerial association of the state.

Equal Suffrage Bill Passes.
Pierre, S. D., Feb. 25.—An equal suffrage bill was passed by the house by a vote of 68 to 28. As a like bill was carried in the senate early in the session and barely failed in the house, suffragettes are jubilant over the outlook.

BRILLIANT LECTURE AT THE OPERA HOUSE

Judge Alden Entertains Audience With Stories, Illustrations and Pointed Remarks.

If the extent that man's work is quoted marks his popularity then Geo. Alden made a decided impression at the opera house Wednesday evening. Judge Alden lectured under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society of the Christian church on the topic "The Needs of the Hour." The house was little more than half full but it is safe to say that if the same speaker appears again, the seating capacity would have to be enlarged. The outline of the theme was based upon the political, social and religious needs. Judge Alden treated this subject in a brilliant, enigmatisic style that proved beyond doubt that he has intimate knowledge of human nature and of the real needs of the people.

Need of Reform.

The speaker pointed out that the need of reform does not concern the professional grafter nearly as much as it does the individual who glories in his meanness because that person has not done much harm. All that is lacking to make a great offender of such a person is the opportunity and the capability.

Judge Alden gave good advice freely and it was of a very pointed nature. Many of the young men in the house will probably drop around to call on their lady friends in the unfashionable hours before noon. The girls on their part will demand a certificate of character from each would be suitor.

For Married People.

There was also a word for the married portion of the audience. If the admonition of the speaker is followed, even in a slight degree some men would have to become acquainted with themselves a second time.

A strong, broad idea of the Christianity of Jesus Christ was presented to the audience. It was the type founded upon the golden rule and applicable to the practical life.

Used Many Stories.

Judge Alden used many stories in the course of his lecture and almost accomplished the impossible. All were unusually applicable and almost all were new.

He combined a rare combination of qualities in a lecturer. A broad mind, sparkling brilliancy, sound common sense, splendid delivery and a fine personal appearance.

Speaks at College.

At the college chapel Thursday morning he made an address to the students and visitors. He presented to the young men a strong man's idea of what is worth while. He did not lecture upon the making of the most of one's opportunities but by sound reasoning and apt illustration aroused the boys and girls to a fuller realization of what they are in college for.

He paid a warm tribute to those mothers and fathers who are denying themselves in order to educate the Want Him to Return.

It is safe to say that Judge Alden will be induced to return to Winchester and when he does, we want his new lecture, if possible stronger than the one Wednesday night, "The Powder and the Match."

This was by far the best number that we have had of the Ladies' lecture course. If the others approach it in excellence they should be greeted with crowded houses.

She says: "October 15th, 1908, I commenced taking Rheumaline, having been on crutches for 3 years. I could not stand on my feet, and my wrists, hands, fingers, knees and ankles were swollen, stiff and extremely painful. I had no appetite and was nervous and despondent. Could not even hold a book. After 12 days of Rheumaline treatment I walked without crutches; 25 days after commencing Rheumaline, I

FIGHT FOR CONTROLL OF BOARD OF AGRICULTURE

Farmers' Institute at Elizabethtown in Throes of a Hot Political Fight.

ELIZABETHTOWN, Ky., Feb. 25.—When the second day's session of the Kentucky State Farmers' Institute convened here today, a desperate political fight for the control of the State Board of Agriculture started. Preliminary skirmishes were made yesterday, but the real battle will not be on until this morning.

The Farmers' Institute elects members of the Agriculture Board. W. R. Moorman, of Glendale, is a candidate to succeed himself as a member of the board. He is a Democrat, and upon his election depends the chances of the Democrats controlling the board. He is opposed by J. Beard, Republican, of Harding.

The present Commissioner of Agriculture in Kentucky is a Republican, and members of that party now in Elizabethtown are determined that the entire Agriculture Department of the State government shall be under the control of that party. Democrats and Republicans were busy last night lining up for today's fight.

The institute convened in this city yesterday morning with a large attendance. H. M. Froman, of Ghent, presided. Colonel H. A. Sommers, editor of the Elizabethtown News, made the welcome address, which was responded to by President Froman.

Mr. Nelson says that there is yet due to the growers of the county about $110,000 and that another distribution of money will be made in a short time. Growers seem satisfied with the amount of money they have received from their sales, and there has not been a kick registered as far as your correspondent could learn. The amount of money that is being distributed in Montgomery county, now, is for the 1907 tobacco which was in the Equity pool.
